Civic Duty versus Civic Responsibility

What is the difference between civic duty and civic responsibility?

Both civic duty and civic responsibility are integral parts of the Albemarle High School Service Learning Project. These two concepts are related, but also a bit different.

Civic duties include duties and responsibilities. Civic duties are legally enforceable and vary with each state. Citizens must do their duties. Some examples of civic duties are obeying the law, serving on a jury, paying taxes, and performing service learning for government class (since it's a requirement of the course).

Source: http://education-portal.com/academy/lesson/civic-duty-definition-examples.html#lesson

Civic responsibility is comprised of actions and attitudes associated with democratic governance and social participation. Civic responsibility can include participation in government, church, volunteers and memberships of voluntary associations. Actions of civic responsibility can be displayed in advocacy for various causes, such as political, economic, civil, environmental or quality of life issues. These actions are also a significant part of the government class service learning project.

Source: http://learningtogive.org/papers/paper11.html